Fair Housing Napa Valley is receiving a $309,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to improve its fair housing enforcement services.

HUD announced the grant Wednesday, as part of a $38 million nationwide package aimed at combating discrimination in housing.

Fair Housing Napa Valley will be getting funding to implement “intake, counseling, investigation, testing, mediation and referral to address historically segregated housing patterns and barriers to fair housing in Napa County,” HUD said in a news release.

The organization plans to work with 15 faith-based groups in doing outreach for fair housing services to the English- and Spanish-speaking residents in Napa County, according to HUD.
